- What is a Breeding Consultation?
The Breeding consultation is done every time the client comes in to begin a new breeding cycle.
Breeding consultation fee covers:
 - Discussion of new breeding plan and any other questions with the veterinarian at any time.
 - Complimentary vaginal cytology
 - Interpretation of progesterone results
 - We will be ON CALL for any questions or problems with breeding and/or whelping and/or csection needs.
- All C-sections MUST be scheduled in advance, and we require a pre C-section exam (Free of charge) the week before the females due date in order to schedule the C-section and go over our on call information. On call csections have additional fees if they are not during office hours.
- Our policy for our csections is that we do not allow the client in surgery during the procedure. Once our trained technicians have revived every puppy and documented their weights, we will bring the puppies to the client in a private room.
- If you need to ship FROZEN SEMEN to be bred to your female, then we suggest shipping the sample ASAP! We have a storage facility and can store the frozen semen safely until your female is ready to be bred. Frozen semen cannot be used for artificial inseminations.
- By bringing this female dog in for breeding services you will be responsible for all charges incurred and will be expected to pay after each office visit.
- The investment of time and money you make in planning and implementing a breeding can be exciting and stressful.
A successful pregnancy and the delivery of a healthy litter are the goals for not only you the owner but for us. Proper progesterone tests increase the chance of success for any breeding as well as proper calculation of due dates.
Breeding canines is never a guarantee due to many variables such as the health of the bitch, viability of the semen, etc.
Whatever breeding methods you choose you and your veterinarian should discuss beforehand the risks, costs and chances of success associated with breeding.
